Cyrillian Launches Seasonalysis.com - A Seasonal Market Analysis Website

Company Bringing Critically Acclaimed Finance App To World Wide Web

Ocala, FL – 18 August 2011 – Cyrillian Inc. has introduced Seasonalysis.com, a web version of their popular iPhone/iPad finance app Seasonalysis. The web version expands on the capabilities of the app, offering users a variety of tools for finding and tracking seasonal stock patterns.

Seasonalysis.com covers over 7,000 stocks across all major US exchanges and includes a database of nearly 15 million seasonal patterns. The web version screening tools are easy-to-use and extremely powerful, allowing members to drill-down to the specific criteria and time periods they're interested in. Members can save up to 5,000 seasonal patterns and receive customized email updates on the patterns they're interested in.

"Have you noticed how predictable stocks are during certain periods of the year? So have we. Seasonalysis quantifies this predictability, providing actionable investment intelligence." said Illya Busigin, President of Cyrillian. "We've created a state-of-the-art toolset that allows you to intuitively find and track the seasonal patterns you're interested in. Staying in sync with seasonal tendencies has never been easier."

The web version is subscription based. The base subscription costs $20/month, with discounts available for semi-annual and annual memberships. All new members are offered a 14 day free trial. The iPhone/iPad version remains priced at $99.99 and continues to be supported and updated.

"The seasonal market analysis area is underserved and overpriced, we hope to change all that with Seasonalysis.com." said Illya.
